New Content from UTL

Early Arabic Printed Books from the British Library \(1475-1900\)

Based on A.G. Ellis's catalogue of the British Library's collection, Early Arabic Printed Books from the British Library includes examples from over 400 years of books printed in Arabic script as well as translations into European and Asian languages from the period. Scholars can search on the full text of items in Arabic, English, French, German, Latin, Italian, Dutch, and Spanish while also being able to discover content in Greek, Hebrew, Hindi, Ottoman Turkish, Persian, Syriac, and seventeen other languages.

State Papers Online

The Libraries have updated this digital collection to include a new series of manuscripts from the National Archives of the UK: Eighteenth Century, 1714-1782, Part 3: State Papers Foreign, Western Europe. This added sub-collection consists of 1209 manuscript volumes, and c. 275,000 folios, encompassing correspondence, reports, memoranda, and parliamentary drafts from ambassadors, civil servants and provincial administrators. A new addition to this resource aims to overcome the fragmented experience of much historical research by re-uniting the Domestic, Foreign, Borders, Scotland, and Ireland State Papers of Britain with the Registers and Calendars of the Privy Council. The Calendars are fully searchable, and each Calendar entry has been linked directly to its related State Paper.
