LAST CALL

Copyright Review & Syllabus Service

The Law Library is pleased to offer copyright clearance for Winter 2025 courses as part of our Syllabus Service. This service assists law faculty and staff with making course readings available to students, while respecting Canadian copyright law and U of T licensing agreements and policies.

Please submit your syllabus to law.infoexpress@utoronto.ca. They will be reviewed on a first-come-first-served basis. Thank you to everyone who have already submitted their syllabus for review.

UTL's Open Access Journal Search Tool

This tool offers a user-friendly, searchable platform that helps researchers identify journals with waived or discounted article processing charges (APCs).

It provides key information such as journal title, imprint, APC details, payment options, Creative Commons license types, and the associated publishing model. More Information.

Happy Retirement, Sufei!

After over 20 years of dedicated service, Sufei, our Access Services Coordinator, is retiring at the end of December. All her colleagues at the Bora Laskin Law Library, past and present, wish her the very best!

Digital Services Dispatch

Lexis+ AI launches to law students in January. Join our January training session to prepare for the launch.

Lexis+ AI: available to students starting Jan 7 & faculty session with Lexis trainer on Jan 10

On January 7, 2025, the Lexis+ AI Assistant tool will be launched to all law student users in Canada. To encourage responsible usage of this tool, our library has scheduled training sessions for law students in late January and February 2025.

Faculty users of Lexis+ Canada currently have access to the AI Assistant, which is designed to:

- Answer legal questions
- Draft documents
- Summarize cases
- Review uploaded legal documents

Although Lexis' AI Assistant has limitations (see UBC Prof. Perrin's review in the CBA National), the tool continues to evolve. We encourage all law Faculty users to try the Lexis+ AI Assistant before and during the Winter 2025 term.

Our library has booked a 30-minute faculty & staff training session with our Lexis trainer on Friday, January 10 from 10-10:30AM. Please bring your questions to this virtual session.
