Combat Link Rot

Perma.cc ∞

Did you know that approximately 70% of all links in citations published between 1999 and 2011 no longer point to the same material? To prevent this “link rot” the Harvard Law School Library developed the Perma.cc system to archive cited online content and generate a permanent link to the archived record of the page.

Bora Laskin Law Library has established an institutional Perma.cc account so that faculty can create unlimited permanent URLs of the online resources they are citing. If you would like to create an account, please contact Alexia Loumankis, alexia.loumankis@utoronto.ca. For more info about Perma.cc, see here perma.cc.

Deceptive Publishers Checklist

The University of Toronto Libraries recently partnered with the Office of the Vice-President, Research and Innovation to develop a checklist that helps researchers identify some of the typical practices used by deceptive publishers so researchers can avoid submitting manuscripts to these journals. This checklist is available for download and has been released under a Creative Commons Attribution-Noncommercial 4.0 International License.
